

Prelude Post Op

Prelude to War

Post Op

Â Â Â The fighting over the last few hours had been intense and the casualties much higher then expected. Captain Hiatt had been receiving intense radio communications from both that of the CIA headquarters and the ground forces he was there commanding. The operation was going as planned with the exception of a few issue which where always to be expected. No plan ever lasted the first bullet. Very soon his forces should be finishing with the explosives at the Radio communications towers and begin there final decent on the Forces of the PD at there main encampment. With any luck they should be done with this god forsaken mission and heading on there way out of these damn jungles before the thunder storms over the horizon came in. Rain showers in this part of the world could be extremely dangerous this high into the hills. Hiatt had already lost more men the he had cared to count at this point from human intervention he didnâ€™t need god taking more by his own hand.Â Â

Â Â Â Dankavitch had known from the first moment when his men had reported troop movements south of the mine fields that this was going to be a bad day. Yet never in all of his thoughts had he ever expected it to be this bad no one could have foreseen the CIA learning of there location so quickly. The initial attack through the minefields had been promising many of the dead bodies of that of the CIA force still laid along the river bed. Yet he couldnâ€™t help but think this was all for show when the CIA wanted something it usually took a miracle to remove them from there desires. All he had hoped for in the beginning was to take out there initial assault it could take weeks to get more units back into these hills. In that time he could remove most of the infrastructure and possibly secure a new location to begin again, he was sure that the â€œsleepy manâ€• had already had plans of a second location. He was always thinking ahead on cases like this its one of the many reasons why Dankavitch and the rest of the men had aligned them selves with him.

Â Â Â The gun fire around the Team leader of Bravo Team was intense he had almost completely lost his voice from yelling over the fighting and talking over the radio had become a very hard thing to do. â€œBravo team leader to Command overâ€•

Â Â Â Hiatt had known this call was coming he had already heard the explosives ring off through the valley moments prior. â€œThis is CIA Command what do you got for me Bravo teamâ€• The sound of C4 has very distinct and after awhile reassuring tone from some of like himself but one could never be completely sure who set it off.

Â Â Â â€œThe radio communications tower has been destroyed requesting permission to Rejoin with the rest of the ground forces and take the base so we can get the hell out of Here! Overâ€• there was nothing more then he wanted at this time then to get out of here he Had seen many good mean die today. Yet in the back of his head he knew they had to stay to complete this mission, without finding out who was behind all of this, those deaths would have been for nothing.

Â Â Â â€œRoger that proceed to rendezvous with alpha one six and hawk one for final movement. Good luck down there boys weâ€™ll see you at the LZ shortly.â€• Now it was time for Captain Hiatt to call back to headquarters and begin securing the transport to get these men out of here.

Â Â Â The sound of the explosion off to the east could only mean one thing the communications tower was down and the only thing left for the CIA was the base in which Dankavitch now stood. Most of his men where dead, exhausted, or missing one could call this the Alamo but at this point it would be a sad, sad comparison. This had been exactly what he had been warning â€œthe sleepy manâ€•, as he was known by the CIA, of happening. Sleepy man what a foolish name they had tagged a man with which they knew nothing about, not even a name at this point. Well had not known before this, Dankavitch was sure by the time it was all said and done the CIA would know every thing they needed to know after this. Funny in its own way, that was a prefect name for him, in many ways although the CIA no way of knowing this at this point. As far as they knew the real man behind the name was still dead in their eyes, of that he was sure. He wasnâ€™t going to like what Dankavitch was going to tell him but at this point he could see nothing else to do it was time to inform the so called â€œsleepy manâ€•.

Â Â Â Â â€œSir this is Captain Hiatt with the ground forces at the Attack on the PEDAR base the mission is nearing accomplishment we are requesting the helicopters be sent in for pick up.â€•

Â Â Â â€œCopy that Captain Hiatt glad to hear it a large storm cell is heading your way any longer and we would have been in some serious trouble. The helicopters are in route they should be there within the hour. Proceed with mission and pick up what Intel you can weâ€™ll see you there.â€•

Â Â Â â€œShould be plenty of time they are beginning the final assault as we speak you bring the smokes lâ€™ll bring the mer Once we clear this mess up lâ€™ll send a detail to grab the dead along the river for transport back.â€•Â He was glad he was not the only one concerned about the building storm clouds headquarters some times had a way of forgetting such details.

Â

Â Â Â The decent down the hill was quick the remaining PD forces where scared, tired, and hurting. Within a few short minutes the troops had reached the base. Something did not sit right with the Team leader of Fox Trot this objective had been way to easy even for the decline in amount of troops that PD still had. To many of there forces had taken of running to the west upon there attack. To his knowledge there was nothing west of here but more hills no civilization for hundreds of miles.

Â Â Â Upon entering the main building and a short scan of the Intel it became horribly obvious as to what they where after. Â

Â Â Â Dankavitch was sweating in a dead run to get out the way of the CIA forces before he became just another body amongst the debris. At this time he carried nothing more then his Colt 1911 and a satellite phone with the sleepy man on the other end â€œSir they have taken the base there is nothing left they made it into the main building.â€•

Â Â Â â€œJesus what a mess, every thing gone?â€•

Â Â Â â€œYes sir for the most part nothing useful any ways. Sir they took the base they got our Intel, I have already sent men out to the cave to the westâ€•

Â Â Â â€œThe choppers are in bound as we speak, just get them and get out of thereâ€•

Â

Â Â Â â€œFox Trot team leader to Commandâ€•

Â Â

Â Â Â â€œThis is command go-ahead Fox Trotâ€• Hiatt was sure this could be nothing more then the report to inform him the base was secure and the mission was a success.

Â Â Â â€œThe Russian nukes sir there here on site to the west of us inside a cave, both of them. Apparently they where moved there a few weeks back.â€•

Â Â Â â€œGood god, stop what ever you are doing I want all available resources on this immediately those nukes must make it into our hands.â€• Captain Hiatt had been informed of the possibility of the nukes at this location but never had he actually thought they would be here.

Â Â Â â€œOne other thing sir, when we where making our assault on the base I witnessed a number of troops moving that way in a dead rush. I had assumed they where just running scared but now I fear they we making there way to the nukesâ€•

Â Â Â â€œWhat ever you have to do make damn sure those Nukes do not leave this site in there hands we may not get another chance to get them back. Overâ€• good god they actually had the nukes, Jesus. Franticly Hiatt reached for his satellite phone he was going to have to buy more time with headquarters to make sure his men could get those nukes out of here safely.

Â Â Â Dankovitches forces reached the nuke in short time, but looking behind him he could see the CIA forces following up in close pursuit. The sleepy man had promised he would meet him at the designated landing zone in short order. The problem was due to in climate weather there wouldnâ€™t be much hope in varying plans.

Â Â Â â€œThis is Captain Hiatt with the ground forces at the Attack on the PEDAR. Sir the nukes, they are here on site.â€•

Â Â Â â€œWell thatâ€™s good news Captain retrieve those nukes and proceed to the LZâ€•

Â Â Â â€œYes sir we plan on it but there is a minor issue the PEDAR forces have a pretty good dead start on us sir so it going to take us a while to get those nukes. Requesting permission to hold off the helicopters until we are able to get the nuke back to safety?â€•

Â Â Â â€œNegative Captain there in no time that storm rolls in and our helicopters wonâ€™t be able to make it. If you cannot retrieve those nukes in time then we will be forced to bomb the entire area. Those are F46 case nukes there is no threat of detonation by the air strike but it will sure as hell kill the forces holding on to it. We cannot allow them to be lost again. Now can you or can you not get those nukes in time?â€•

Â Â Â Hiatt had to take a deep breath for a moment and think about what was happening his men would not like to know that every thing that had accrued this day was for so little when this goal was attainable. The lives they had lost for nothing if in the end it was all bombed any ways all this shit for nothing more then an Intel gathering operation. Then what happened if the PEDAR made it out of the blast area with those nukes. Jesus what a waste but there was no way of knowing if his men could get to them in time. â€œSir there is no way of knowing for sure if we can get them and get back to the helicopters in time. But Iâ€™m telling you this is large mistake.â€•

Â Â Â â€œOnly time will tell that for sure. Pull off the hunt for those nukes the risk is to great we will be bombing that whole area at 12:45 your men have until 12:30 to get to those choppers.â€•

“With all do respect sir, fuck you! I’m not about to tell these men this whole mission and all those lives lost was for nothing that you ass holes now decided an air strike instead of losing American lives is the way to go.”

Captain you had better hold your tongue if you know what is best for you now get your men to that! the word could just barely be heard as the bullet from Captain Hiatt’s pistol slammed through the satellite phone. He had heard a number of idiotic orders from above but this was by far one of the worst, an air strike what were these people thinking. Picking up his radio he regained his composure and called out.

To all remaining CIA forces inside of the Area, we have been ordered to abandon our pursuit of the nuclear devices. After all we have been through today, after fighting through the masses, and after having seen our brothers in arms our friends die right in front of us we have been ordered to give up. I don’t know about all of you but I don’t want to wake up tomorrow knowing that the nuclear devices that just blow up New York City is the same one that my friend died trying to save that I needlessly gave up pursuit after because some asshole thousands of miles away worried you couldn’t do your job. This site as of 12:45 will be nothing more than a pile of rubble from an Air strike ordered on this site, making our mission here and the lives of those men over nothing more than a few pieces of useless Intel very costly. So as of right now you have your orders any man that wishes to head to the LZ now will have no mixed words from any one else. But those of you that continue this fight will have my backing for their actions and will not be held accountable to blame!..

After a few moments of radio silence a single voice came back over the radio waves it sounded like that of the leader of Hawk one I believe I speak for all of us Sir, fuck um. We are not leaving without those nukes in hand.

Hiatt laughed at the choice of words used every well then we have all made our choices, retrieve those nukes and we all meet at the landing zone.

When Dankovitch finally reached the top of the hill over looking the landing zone he was disgruntled to see the CIA forces standing in it place. Every move he made was being watched by them and what was worse they had roaming patrols out after him. It was time for him to stash the nukes and get to the alternate landing zone time was of the essence.

It was Alpha One Six that found the first Nuke, which lying under a bush with a horrible attempt to hide it from the sight of others. Alpha One Six to Command we have one of the two devices it was stashed under some random bush looked like that had tried to hide it. We are heading to the LZ now to bring it home.

That’s great news I knew you could do it. Keep sharp out there every one else if they tried to ditch one you can bet they ditched the second nuke too. We’re running out of time so pick up the pace I want every one back here before 12:30 to get off this rock. I won’t be able to hold the pilots any longer than that.

Dankovitch watched as the CIA men took the nuke he had laid under the bush. He could still not figure out why it was he was told to leave it for them to find it. Or why he was suppose to make it obvious as to the location of it in the cave in the first place. Why would you want to let someone know where something was at just to take it and try to ditch it and make sure they knew where it was at so they could pick it up but not make it look like that what you were doing. It seemed like a useless show to him but the sleepy man was seldom wrong in his actions.

Alpha One Six to remaining CIA forces we are at the landing zone the pilots are telling us they don’t have any longer wait you only have a short time before they have to take off this storm is closing fast. The radio transmission was weak and scratched from the interference due to the approaching storm.

At exactly 12:30 the CIA helicopter took off Alpha One Six and the few others that made it sat in the helicopters as they took off watching their fellow Agents scramble to try and make it but at no luck. Some could be seen already trying to head south to evade the coming air strike. It was no use of course for the most part, the helicopters and Alpha One Six the remaining fire team passed the F117 on their way. The whole time wondering if those Air Force pilots knew they were not only going to cause the deaths of those terrorists but also the deaths of fellow Americans who risked their lives for freedom. Yet as is always the case with the CIA they didn’t and never would know. The missing men were sure to be played off as just another series of accidents involving Americans such as a series of freak car accidents of some kind. The bodies conveniently damaged beyond recognition.

Hiatt, who had stormed away from the LZ as the first helicopter took to flight, watched from the ground as he headed south away from where the strikes should be with a few other Agents who did not make it to the LZ in time. He knew it was nothing more than a sad attempt to save their lives and that no amount of running would save him, or his fellow agents at this point that much was for sure. His only regret was that the second nuke could not be found, what a sad creature this world can turn a man into that his remorse was not for the lives of his men but for not finding that nuke.

When Dankovitch reached the helicopter he was surprised to see the so called sleepy man sitting inside. Sir I didn’t expect to see you here.

“Some times you just need to see first hand what it is you have caused. Did they find the nuke?” the sleepy men ne said much and always keep to the point

“I still don’t understand what the hell is going on, why did we give them the nuke. I mean even worse why did we them the nuke twice couldn’t we have just let them take it from the cave why the big facade?” Dankovitch had been confused over the whole thing for hours now.

“How many nukes did you leave them to believe was in the cave?”

“Two nukes just like you had said Vincent, but you know full well the other nuke is not here” funny to say his name openly truly what is in a name? He had been so adamant about not letting that simple thing get out in the beginning. Vincent never talked much about his past just about the future.

“

“Yes and with any luck as of right now they still believe there where two nukes in that cave. Logically speaking if you got scared and ditched one you must have done the same with the second one. They will take the bait for now and it should take them months to figure out they where wrong, especially if my old friends are right and there is an Air strike headed this way.” Vincent always tried to have every angle covered in a war like he had just started moles where extremely important if not invaluable. “Any ways the second nukes already on its way to fulfilling it role in this whole thing. They will see first hand there mistakes...”

“

Laos: Update on Operation Prelude to War Summary: Mission accomplished with partial failure due to Primary objective not being meet. Only one of two nuclear devices where recovered from site secondary nuke still missing. Main infrastructure of PD (Populus Econtra Dominatus Absconditus Rector) base destroyed both by on ground forces and ensuing F-117 air strike. Sustained heavy casualties due to unexpected resistance, and failure of on ground commanders to obey orders to evacuate site on time. Objectives: Water Supply Communications “ACCOMPLISHED Power Station “ACCOMPLISHED Main Base / Intelligence ACCOMPLISHED Nuclear devices “PARTIAL FAILURE Limited AAR: The following is a short description of the actions taken at each individual site and the results of these actions. A more detailed description can be found as usual in the debrief sections of the individual on field commanders in paralleling reports. Water Supply: After the loss of multiple units trying to make the crossing through the minefields the Water contamination vials where lost in the ensuing battles. The resistance held by the PD was greatly underestimated by the strategies of the infield commanders. While greatly out numbered the PD took appropriate fortified positions and with great resilience and persistence held off the on field agents with great accuracy for some time. It was deemed unnecessary by the OSCIC (Off Site Commander In Charge) to mount a search in hopes of retrieving the vials from the fallen CIA Agents. After making the crossing the OSCIC instead ordered the on field commanders to push forward with the rest of the operation at hand. FAILURE Water facility’s still remain on site yet with the destruction of the rest of the base should hold no further danger to the reconstitution of the base. Communications: This may have been the most crucial objective in terms of the ending result of a hasty F-117 air strike on the PD main encampment. While fighting up the hill side was a daunting task the area was secured early on by almost half of the remaining CIA ground forces to include both Bravo Team and soon there after Fox Trot. The issue was in the other half of the CIA forces on site. Hawks One was separated by the battle with much of the remaining PD between them selves and the Radar tower. Alpha One Six was forced to abandon plans to take the PD base by the back through the most eastern crossing, facing heavy resistance they had to return down river to a different passage not so heavily secured. In an attempt to avoid further losses Hawks One tried to take a northern route around the main forces of the PD. With the C4 in the hands of Hawks One the forces at the Communications tower where force to stand and hold the objective and wait for Hawks One arrived. After a long period of waiting the Hawks eventually sent runners with the C4 in hand and Disabled the Tower. MISSION ACCOMPLISHED The radar tower and surrounding equipment where completely destroyed by the usage of C4 explosives. Power Station With Hawks One heading north to try to out maneuver the PD they walked striate into the location of the Power Station. Luckily for the CIA Agents it was Hawks One that held the EMP power generator while on site they attached the device frying out the Power lines for the entire encampment. Mid way through the operation Hawks One was reinforced by that of Alpha One Six. Upon accomplishment the entire force headed north and east around the main base of the PD to link of with Bravo Team and Fox Trot. MISSION ACCOMPLISHED The entire electrical system on site was over powered and any hopes of reusing the already laid out wiring would be useless. Main Base / Intelligence Once the forces of both Hawks One and Alpha One Six where situated near the northern portion of the Main Base Hawks One sent two runners to hand off the C4 at the communications tower and complete the objective at that location. Once the Communications tower was destroyed both Bravo Team and Fox Trot reconnected with the remaining members of the CIA forces and all four Squads descended on the Main Base. The remaining PD forces where greatly out numbered and exhausted from hours of continuous on slaughter. Once inside the Main Base it was easy to decipher the intelligence littered amongst the derbies inside the base. With this knowledge the CIA Agents where able to obtain both the location of the nuclear devices on site and finally obtain the Identity of the Sleepy man. MISSION ACCOMPLISHED from this operation lead to the addition of the mission to retrieve the lost Russian nukes Identity of the Sleepy Man now known to be one Vincent D. Maxwell a United States Marine Corps officer presumed dead after a helicopter crash while on mission inside of Pakistan. Nuclear devices With the last minute knowledge of the location of the nuclear devices, the ensuing bad weather, and the advancement of the PD to gain the nukes ahead of CIA forces the CIA Headquarters ordered an F-117 strike on the PD encampment. With minimal time left the CIA forces lead a last ditch effort to retake the Nukes from the hands of the PD. With only minutes to spare Alpha One Six and a few others where able to retake the nukes and arrived at the extract point just in time before the Air Strike. Many CIA agents where lost at this site when the HH53 helicopters where forced to take off or be destroyed by ensuing air strike or the advent of the Inclement weather. PARTIAL FAILURE Many PD Forces may have been able to leave the ba an unknown helicopter leaving the area just as the first strikes landed have been reported by the air force pilots of the F-117 aircraft. First Nuke retrieved and in out hands Second Nukeâ€¡. STILL MISSING.

Â