The Desert Hawks and AEX are pleased to bring you:

OP: The Hills Have Eyes

Along the southern slopes of the Hindu Kush mountain range lays Khyber Pass the main trading route between Pakistan and Afghanistan. Ultimately it is the main route for supplies to the Taliban regime in Afghanistan and the main source of income from arms dealing and opium trade for groups such as the Sleepy Mans militia known as PEDAR. This mountain side pass has seen more war and death than any other single location on the face of the planet; its blood soaked routs can be dated back before the march of the Armies of Alexander the Great. The hills are riddled with the ruined forts of the armies of the past no one nation every truly able to control the region. Its passes have been guarded for generations now by the Pathans, rather fierce Pushtu-speaking hill tribes. Even the Pakistani government that lays claims to most of this region only partially controls the area thru complex games of bribery, threat and divide-and-rule with those chiefs to maintain its nominal authority. The Taliban themselves can find their roots amongst these people and their tribes are fierce supporters of the Jihad against the western world. It is these traitorous mountain hills and tribes that are believed to hide Osama Bin Laden and the majority of the commanders of his armies. Both sides of this pass are guarded by the armies of the respective countries that hold their openings Pakistan to the east and the armies of the Afghanistan nation to the west with the American square in the middle of it all.

It is here that members of the Army's 10th Mountain Division out of Fort Drum, New York have tracked down Mullah Habib Rahman Aziz. Believed to have been handpicked by Osama Bin Laden himself; his men are amongst the best trained and feared of the Taliban Regime. It is believed that this man alone is the eyes, ears, and representative to PEDAR in Afghanistan. His forces have claimed to have suffered virtually no losses in their war against what they call the "American-orchestrated regime". His winter camp has been located near one of the ruined British fort left over from the Third Afghan War of 1919 known as SASCO. It is of the highest importance that he be removed from power before the melting of the winter snows bringing the spring and a re-insurgence of attacks on American lead forces. This is of the highest importance for both the war against Al-Qaeda and stopping funding for PEDAR forces.
